Figure 1. A 3D plot of the probability of a correct response as a function of the number of correct responses in the previous trial (x-axis) and the number of correct responses in the previous two trials (y-axis). The z-axis represents the probability of a correct response. The plot shows a strong positive correlation between the number of correct responses in the previous trial and the probability of a correct response in the current trial.

Figure 1. A schematic diagram of the experimental design. The subjects were divided into two groups: the control group and the experimental group. The control group received a standard training program, while the experimental group received a modified training program. The results of the training program were compared between the two groups.
